ACM Website relaunch

A message from the ACM President.

We are proud to introduce our newly-refurbished website for the use of everyone interested in the work of the Association of Caribbean MediaWorkers (ACM) and the rights and responsibilities of journalists and media workers across the Caribbean Basin.

We have concentrated on presenting a more user-friendly interface and have included several new features in order to upgrade the functionality of the site.

Through our site, you also now have access to virtually all English-language Caribbean media enterprises with an online presence and we welcome your suggestions for new and additional media listings. We are indeed aware that the current directory is incomplete.

The ACM has moved from strength to strength since our inauguration in 2001. It is hoped our new and improved website will assist us in reaching more and more people with news and information on our work to network, protect the rights of and enhance the professional capabilities of Caribbean media workers.

Thank you for your support.

President
